My joy and foundation of caring for people rests in the formation of strong, collaborative relationships with patients built over time and based on easy, honest and open communication. I strive to understand and meet people where they are in addressing their health issues. My goals are to educate, support and empower individuals in their pursuit of health and wellness. I hope to help people flourish and create more wholeness in their lives.

Personal Interests:

I thrive on riding my bike, practicing meditation and yoga, cooking, putting in my garden and spending time with my husband Andy and my goofy dogs Kosmo and Rosco.
